REPORT OF THE BOARD

To the Commissioner of Education:

In accordance with the provisions of Section 14 of Chapter 78 of the General Laws, the Board of Free Public Library Commissioners herewith presents the sixty-first annual report, covering the work of the Division of Public Libraries for the year July 1, 1949 to June 30, 1950.

"Support of libraries depends in part on an awareness of the services rendered by libraries to the public and the use made of library facilities by the public." The Division of Public Libraries, as the Commonwealth's library extension agency, has a state-wide responsibility to develop a greater public interest and understanding of library services and problems and thereby promote better support of libraries.

This Division is fortunate indeed in having had over a long period of years an enthusiastic, understanding Board of Free Public Library Commissioners who take an active pride and interest in the Division's programs. They have strongly supported its work with deeds and efforts to acquire an adequate appropriation for they realize that any agency's effectiveness is dependent in large measure on its income.

During the past fiscal year we have utilized the personal services and facilities of this Division to the utmost to carry on regular information and advisory services, to plan and direct a program geared to the needs and improvement of public library service in the state, to promote the cause of school libraries, and to extend the development of the present regional library plan which is now localized in three areas of the Commonwealth.

There are 4,664,284 people in Massachusetts according to the complete but as yet preliminary 1950 Federal census statistics. A reporting of the state-wide public library statistics for 1949 must of necessity allow for some margin of error since despite repeated efforts on our part to obtain them, several communities have never cooperated in completing and returning the statistical data sheet which is distributed annually from this Division and used for the compilation of such figures. Basing estimates in every case on the complete population figure and otherwise incomplete returns, $1.73 per capita was spent for overall public library support; with about $.22 per capita expended for books. Having access to a public library book stock of about 2.6 volumes per capita, the people in Massachusetts borrowed from public libraries about 4.9 books per capita during the 1949 calendar year.

Massachusetts may well take pride in this record of public library achievement provided the many inequalities in educational opportunity as offered through the individual public libraries of our state are considered as a challenge to both legislators and the general public to promote and provide a state aid to libraries program which will remedy these inequalities.

Functioning within the limits of an inadequate budget, under overcrowded and extremely unsatisfactory working conditions and with a staff far too small to discharge the normal functions of a library extension agency in a state of this size, we can be justly proud of our record of achievement this past year. In spite of all these serious handicaps, we have shown an increase in every phase of our regular service as will be noted in the summary of activities included in this report.

The time has long since arrived: 1. to undertake an expanded program of field work; 2. to extend regional library service to other areas of the state; and 3. to experiment with other types of cooperative library effort. This, however, cannot be done without increases in appropriation for the Division or without special appropriations for separate extension projects.

It is evident that professional interest must be intensified and lay interest aroused in a program of state-wide library development. These two groups working together with sureness of purpose, intensity of zeal and clearness of direction could conduct an information program to point up to the people of the state and through them to the legislators the state's responsibility in library advancement. "Every argument for education is an argument for reading, since reading is the almost universal tool of education."

CERTIFICATION OF LIBRARIANS

On August 14, 1948, ninety days after its passage, the Act Providing for the Certification of Librarians became effective. Under the terms of the Act, the Board of Free Public Library Commissioners, assisted by an Advisory Committee of professional librarians, was designated as the certifying agency. This Advisory Committee was duly appointed by the Board and from October 1948 to April 1949 held eighteen meetings, bringing in their final report to the Board on April 5, 1949. The report was carefully studied and evaluated and a follow-up made on the Advisory Committee's recommendation that the Office of the Attorney General be consulted on certain technicalities in the Certification Law. After the preparation and printing of application forms for certification and the certificates themselves, the Board was ready in December 1949 to receive applications. From December 1949 to June 30, 1950, applications for 689 professional and 116 sub-professional certificates of librarianship were received, reviewed, and processed and certificates awarded.

At a special ceremony following a luncheon meeting of the Massachusetts Library Association at the Copley Plaza on February 9, 1950, Mr. Stacy B. Southworth, Chairman of the Board of Free Public Library Commissioners, presented an honorary certificate of professional librarianship to His Excellency Paul A. Dever, Governor of the Commonwealth, and the first regular certificate of professional librarianship to Mr. Milton E. Lord, Director of the Boston Public Library and President of the American Library Association.

WESTERN MASSACHUSETTS LIBRARY FEDERATION

In January of 1950, Mr. Marshall Field III offered to the Division of Public Libraries a conditional grant of $36,500 for the establishment of a cooperative regional library demonstration in the area around Conway. Details of a proposed two-year cooperative library activity centering around a loose federation of fourteen small libraries in twelve neighboring Massachusetts towns were worked out by this Division. The plan was presented to the librarians and trustees of the various communities concerned at a meeting held in the Greenfield Public Library on May 9, 1950. The trustees of the libraries in Ashfield, Charlemont, Conway, Cummington, Deerfield, Goshen, Leyden, Plainfield, Shelburne Falls, Sunderland, Whately and Williamsburg agreed to participate in the plan as presented with the understanding that it would involve no financial obligation on the part of the communities and their libraries for the two year period.

Headquarters for the project to be officially known as the Western Massachusetts Library Federation are to be located in the Field Memorial Library in Conway. A check from Marshall Field in the amount of $19,500 made payable to the Massachusetts Board of Free Public Library Commissioners was received and deposited with the State Treasurer. These funds will be expended wholly by the Board during the first year of this cooperative library activity which will be administered by this Division and directed by a staff of two professional librarians—Miss Harriet Kemp, Supervisor and Library Specialist in Work with Adults, and Miss Isabel R. Carroll, Library Specialist in Work with Children and Young People.

The Western Massachusetts Library Federation will get underway on October 1, 1950. Through this exceedingly generous contribution, Mr. Field is giving impetus to a most important and significant program for improving and developing better library facilities for small communities in our Commonwealth. Being an experiment with one of the newer developments in public library service, the progress of this project will be watched by the American Library Association and by library extension agencies all over the United States.
